Introducing the digital edition

FOREIGN BROADCAST INFORMATION SERVICE

DAILY REPORTS, 1941-1996

A unique window on the world from non-U.S. sources, offering diverse international perspectives on local, national and regional events as they unfolded.

"Plunges the user directly into moments when history was made."

— Glenda Pearson, Human Rights Librarian, University of Washington

Praise for the Readex digital edition of FBIS Daily Reports, 1941-1996

"An online edition of the FBIS Daily Reports — offering full-text, consistently reliable English translations from the original news reports in dozens of languages from every region of the world — presents broad new opportunities for students shaping their research topics.... The capability to perform full-text searches of a resource previously available only in microform will open up years and years of information from foreign news sources that may not have been used before because of the effort required to access the material.... This exciting resource provides access to primary source material of critical international importance and to the students and scholars researching diverse aspects of our global society."

— Donna Koepp, Former Head of Government Documents & Microforms/Head of Reference & Instructional Services, and John Collins, Reference/Documents Librarian, both Harvard College Library

Ahmad Shah Massoud, assassinated Afghan commander.

"The premier collection of translated foreign press available in English."

— R. William Ayres, Ph.D., Director, Center for Global Citizenship, and Associate Professor of International Relations, Elizabethtown College

"The new online searchable edition opens new avenues for important research in the social sciences and humanities."

— Robert A. Pape, Professor of Political Science, University of Chicago

"A searchable online version of the FBIS Daily Reports will prove to be even more invaluable to future researchers."

— Robert Bookmiller, Ph.D., Director of International Studies and Associate Professor, Department of Government and Political Affairs, Millersville University of Pennsylvania

Soldier in the Civil War in Cambodia.

Readex's FBIS Advisory Board

Jerry Breeze, Columbia University

Tim Byrne, Department of Energy, Oak Ridge, TN

Betty Febo, Wellesley College

Isabel D. Holowaty, University of Oxford

Kelly Janousek, California State University, Long Beach

Sue Kendall, San Jose State University

Julie A. Linden, Yale University

Mary Mallory, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Chris Palazzolo, Emory University

Glenda Pearson, University of Washington

Michael Poulin, Colgate University

Announcing the online edition

FOREIGN BROADCAST INFORMATION SERVICE (FBIS) DAILY REPORTS, 1941-1996

Created by the U.S. intelligence community to benefit policy makers and analysts, FBIS Daily Reports offer foreign views and perspectives on historical events from thousands of monitored broadcasts and publications.

Translated into English from more than 50 languages — from Arabic to Swahili — these comprehensive media reports from around the globe include news, interviews, speeches and editorial commentary. For decades, these wide-ranging reports have been invaluable to students and scholars in the academic community.

This authoritative digital edition of FBIS Daily Reports, 1941-1996 will provide major new teaching and research opportunities in such disciplines as area studies, international political science, military and diplomatic history, communication and propaganda studies and world history.

"Scholars and students in an increasingly globalized world must engage with the history and cultural perspectives of other countries. The FBIS Daily Reports are a crucial resource for those seeking to understand events from other countries' standpoints. Digitization will dramatically expose the breadth and depth of this unique material."

— Julie Linden, Government Information Librarian, Yale University

To request a free trial, contact Readex today at 800.762.8182 or sales@readex.com.

Soldiers drape a portrait in 1993 of Muhammed Ali Jinnah, Pakistan's founder.

Unfiltered perspectives from more than 100 countries around the globe

The Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) Daily Reports have been the United States' principal record of political and historical open source intelligence for more than 65 years. The original mission of the FBIS was to monitor, record, transcribe and translate radio broadcasts from foreign governments, official news services and clandestine broadcasts from occupied territories.

Many of these materials are first-hand reports of events as they occurred, and, in most cases, the English-language translations of broadcasts within FBIS Daily Reports represent the only surviving records. As such, this exceptional collection of transcripts provides exclusive insight into world history in the second half of the 20th century.

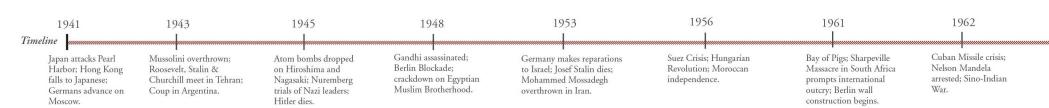

Translated materials form a distinctive English-language resource

Without translations, researchers must either limit their research projects to primary sources in languages they understand or rely entirely on secondary sources. The vast majority of articles in FBIS Daily Reports were translated into English from their original languages, and as such constitute an indispensable and easy-to-use tool for students of international political science, world history and more. In addition, FBIS Daily Reports serve as a storehouse of information on the world's cultures, uniquely capturing how societies change over time.

First-hand views on international events and issues

With Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) Daily Reports, students and scholars are afforded intriguing local perspectives on the rise to power of Pol Pot in Cambodia, Deng Xiaoping in China, Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran, Mikhail Gorbachev in the Soviet Union, Lech Walesa in Poland, Indira Gandhi in India, Benazir Bhutto in Pakistan and many others.

Momentous events — covered with unmatched detail as they unfolded — include the peace agreement between Egypt and Israel, Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, formation of the Sandinista government in Nicaragua, student takeover of Tiananmen Square, opening of the Berlin Wall, freeing of Nelson Mandela, Persian Gulf War, break up of the Soviet Union, beginning of the Rwandan genocide and much more.

A wealth of translated media reports from every FBIS region

Fully searchable across all regions, Readex's definitive digital edition of Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) Daily Reports, 1941-1996 is organized as follows:

- FBIS Daily Reports, 1941-1974
- FBIS Daily Reports, 1974-1996
 - 1. Middle East and [North] Africa (MEA), 1974-1987; Near East and South Asia (NES), 1987-1996
 - 2. South Asia (SAS), 1980-1987; Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA), 1974-1980 and (AFR), 1987-1996
 - 3. China (CHI), 1974-1996
 - 4. Asia and the Pacific (APA), 1974-1987; East Asia (EAS), 1987-1996
 - 5. Latin America (LAT and LAM), 1974-1996
 - 6. Eastern Europe (EEU), 1974-1996
 - 7. Soviet Union/Central Eurasia (SOV), 1974-1996
 - 8. Western Europe (WEU), 1974-1996
- FBIS Daily Reports Annexes, 1974-1996

Russian Neva-M anti-aircraft missile system.

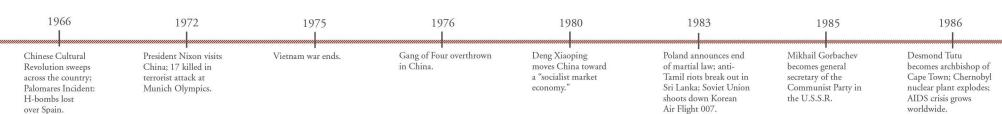

Artists acting as soldiers perform an opera depicting battles fought in ancient China.

An indispensable resource of materials selected by the Central Intelligence Agency

In short, FBIS Daily Reports, 1941-1996 offers an abundance of credible, primary source information on events, people and problems around the globe. A vital source for understanding and analyzing world affairs and strategic policy issues, this online edition will be extensively used by students, faculty and scholars to research a wide variety of international topics.

To request a free trial, contact Readex today at 800.762.8182 or sales@readex.com.

FBIS in the news

"During some periods, such as the chaotic Cultural Revolution, FBIS was virtually the only reliable source of information for China scholars and government agencies." — Los Angeles Times (January 14, 1997)

"Irreplaceable information about the world outside." — The Boston Globe (January 13, 1997)

"America's window on the world for 50 years." — The Washington Times (December 30, 1996)

Also available...the essential complement to FBIS Daily Reports

JOINT PUBLICATIONS RESEARCH SERVICE (JPRS) REPORTS, 1957-1994

"...rich scientific and cultural gems from the USSR and Eastern bloc countries, China, Vietnam, and other areas of concern from the late 1950s through the early 1990s...internationalists will greatly benefit from this historic archive."

— Christopher C. Brown, Professor, Reference Technology Integration Librarian and Government Documents Librarian, Penrose Library, University of Denver

The Joint Publications Research Service was established in March 1957 as part of the United States Department of Commerce's Office of Technical Services, about six months before the Soviet Union launched Sputnik 1. Acting as a unit within the Central Intelligence Agency, JPRS staffers prepared translations for the use of U.S. Government officials, various agencies, and the research and industrial communities.

This unique collection— Joint Publications Research Service (JPRS) Reports, 1957-1994 —features English translations of foreign-language monographs, reports, serials, journal and newspaper articles, and radio and television broadcasts from regions throughout the world. With an emphasis on communist and developing countries, this digital edition contains a wealth of hard-to-find scientific, technical, and social science materials translated from many languages.

Featuring millions of pages from more than 130,000 reports, JPRS Reports enables researchers to explore a vast corpus of foreign material, all now fully searchable for the first time. These reports, some of which are quite rare, are ideal for researching military, socioeconomic, political, environmental, scientific and technical issues and events.

1992

From top to bottom: India's Indira Gandhi, Iraq's Saddam Hussein and Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

1991

1993

Civil war erupts in Rwanda; Nelson Mandela elected South African president; leaders of Israel and Jordan sign peace treaty.

1994

Mexican peso collapses; Russia and the breakaway republic of Chechnya establish truce; France explodes five underground nuclear devices; Serbia, Bosnia and Croatia end fighting.

1995

Conflicts in central Africa between Tutsi and Hutu create a refugee crisis; Yasser Arafat reelected president of the Palestinian Authority.

1996

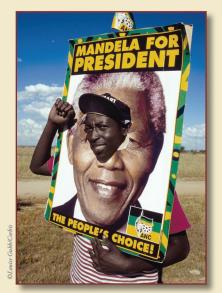

Sank inc.; Cover image of Chinese parade: ◎JP LaffontSygnalCorbis

Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) Daily Reports, 1941-1996

- New, fully searchable online edition is ideal for students and scholars of area studies, political science, world history, media, law and other disciplines.
- Transcripts of foreign broadcasts and news from thousands of sources, translated into English
- A wealth of unfiltered information from more than 100 countries around the globe from Afghanistan to Zimbabwe
- Ideal for understanding all sides of issues and events that preceded current crises around the world

Saint Basil's Cathedral in Moscow's Red Square.

A Nelson Mandela supporter wearing a campaign poster in 1994.

"Many of these materials are literally transcripts of events as they occurred, right down to parenthetical asides inserted by the FBIS transcriber-translator: 'Gunfire heard in background' of a Ghanaian radio news program in progress as the station was stormed in an attempted coup.

"FBIS brings to the mind's eye what on-the-spot video does now: it makes the events of the last half of the 20th century come alive, as well as guarantee that first-hand descriptions will survive to tell the tale even after events have been deconstructed, reassembled and interpreted according to the prevailing political and historical theories of the day."

— Glenda Pearson, Human Rights Librarian, University of Washington

To request a free trial, contact Readex today at 800.762.8182 or sales@readex.com.